NETC HRO marks Anniversary

PENSACOLA, Fla. – Naval Education and Training Command’s (NETC) Human Resources Office (HRO) celebrated its anniversary as a separate, command-owned organization July 24.

Located in Building 680 on Naval Air Station Pensacola, the NETC HRO allows HR services for NETC civilian personnel to be provided with support from the Office of Civilian Human Resources (OCHR) Operations Center located in Stennis Space Center, Miss.

“We’ve been extremely pleased with the level of service the new HRO has been able to provide,” said Janice Travis, NETC’s director of Civilian Human Resources (DCHR). “The common approach to HR efforts, clearer lines of accountability and consistent resourcing and execution in HR efforts have significantly streamlined the personnel action process for NETC.”

The NETC HRO serves more than 4,500 civilians enterprise-wide and consists of 25 HR professionals, and includes site locations with concentrations of NETC personnel, including Pensacola, Fla., Norfolk, Va., Newport, R.I. and San Diego.

“Over the past year, we’ve processed more than 3,000 NETC enterprise personnel actions including many that we inherited from the changeover,” said NETC HRO Director Genie Milhouse. “In today’s Navy HR environment, commands must adapt quickly to changing and unique mission requirements and that's exactly what we have done. We've had a challenging year with sequestration and furloughs, but the command-owned HRO approach has enabled NETC to tailor our human capital decisions and resources both strategically and operationally."
